Hi all

How would the 19th June suit for the procurement act roundtable?

Best not to go into July as we then hit people going on holiday.

Let me know what you think.

Thanks

Hi Seb,

That is my understanding. We will aim to get as much done for May 2 as possible.

Thanks,

Thanks Elliot, looks like really good progress.

My understanding is that Henna and Tom will then aim to fill in column F (and perhaps the others?) ahead of our call on 2 May and we'll get LegalTech along so we can go through the plan with them. Let me know if that's not right.

Hi all,

Thanks for your time today. As promised, please find attached the Procurement Act 2023 research in its current state as well as the PPN library that was developed by the Library team.

I should have all the sections filled in by Tuesday night of next week, and will send you an updated version before my time off.

Just to confirm we are holding this on the 4th June (sorry I got the 3rd wrong).

We do still want a speaker please who can talk on the procurement act and defence – Tom if you are on annual leave Henna are you please able to step in? this is a good opportunity for some procurement cross-selling too.

Happy to talk through in more detail in a meeting.

Elliot, I know you are quite busy so let us know when is best to catch up on progress and if you'd rather catch-up next week?

Just to let you know we've just had a call with Mark Leach on holding a defence & security webinar on the changes to the SSRO. Mark mentioned that the procurement act links into the new changes and we'd like to include a short section on the procurement act on the webinar if any of you are willing to get involved. We're looking at holding this in early June, Henna or Tom would you be willing to get involved please?

As we've also had a couple of requests on further details on the procurement act, my suggestion would be to have the next roundtable late June on the procurement act, so we can use this as a follow up.

Thank you

Hi all

The meeting I tried to schedule for you to discuss with tech/defence/energy didn't seem to go ahead last week so keen to get this rolling again.

I've added Roger, Henna and Elliot into the email chain as I think we need all hands on deck for this one.

The meeting we had was to try and speak with tech/defence/energy to see how it will affect their sectors, however I am not too sure that the other sectors really know the answer to that yet from speaking to Michael and George.

@Elliot Levy, please can I task you with doing some research into how the Procurement Act will affect the technology, defence and energy sectors to help move this along? We can then speak with the other teams and see if this aligns with what they are seeing (if they are seeing anything). This can then help inform the articles which Tom previously wanted to touch on: 1) Impact of MEAT to MAT 2) More flexible procedures 3) Debarment 4) KPI publication 5) Increase in transparency 6) New modification grounds.

@Roger Bickerstaff and @Henna Malik as you are kindly helping us lead on the Procurement Roundtable series, is there scope to get something in on the Procurement Act for clients? Either for the same client base we're targeting at the moment or more widely, as a webinar?

When searching 'the procurement act' on google we don't come up at all, but Mills & Reeve, HFW and Stephenson Harwood all come up on the first page and when searching 'the procurement act law firm' it's Mills & Reeve, Addleshaw Goddard, Osborne Clarke, Herbert Smith Freehills, Bates Wells and Pinsent Masons so we really need to put time aside to up the content and get the project underway to help with our external awareness. Mills & Reeve for example have what seems a very useful page here: Procurement Act 2023 | Procurement portal which has a timetable, latest news, short guides, videos and more so if we can at least start with the articles and perhaps a roundtable or webinar that will help.

Thanks all and hopefully we can work together to get the ball rolling.

Thanks
Chloe

Hi Tom,

Just going to recap what we discussed briefly earlier today so we have it for reference and can follow it as a high level plan:

1. Tom to put a few paragraphs together on the Act
2. Tom to put a series of ~5 questions for each Sector rep to answer (ie on how the Act will impact businesses in their sector: remove bottlenecks? Increase competition? Lower barriers to entry?)
3. Send these to Sector reps to complete. Need to think about which Associates will be best for each Sector.
4. Publish these practical Sector pieces alongside the more in-depth articles on the Act which will come from Tom's chapter contribution for Roger (should be completed in March)

Let us know what you think timing for the first two points?

Separately, we also briefly discussed the idea of an international comparison report on: How AI Procurement is being dealt with in different countries. Seems to be good interest in this from the IPPG Associates and it will be the main article topic for the next newsletter so we should leverage that enthusiasm. @Stuart Cairns – let us know what you think.

Subject: RE: Procurement Act research

Hi all,

Just been looking through the CMS 'Procurement Cube' and it consists of something similar to what we've discussed – short sector focused articles with short (45s) videos. There are 8 pages in total, of which 6 sectors:

1. Homepage with buttons for the 6 sectors covered, timeline of the act with links to previous article updates , FAQs list
2. Defence
3. Energy
4. Infrastructure
5. Lifesciences
6. Real Estate
7. TMT
8. Latest new page – which only has links to 2 articles from March and June

As we were discussing the content isn't revolutionary, but it does create strong brand awareness for the team. As Chloe mentioned having this content which all links together gets you high up on Google and because it's packaged together you immediately remembered 'the Cube'.

I think we could quite easily create something for a selection of our sectors you'd like to target: Tech & Comms, Energy, Lifesciences and Defence (plus Transport Infra?). If you could draft 300-500 words for each as a short article, then we can help draft a short video script to go with it. We can then package it up nicely on the website and make sure the relevant pieces are on the sector pages as well.

This would also be good from an internal awareness perspective. It gives you something to talk about on sector calls and something which others can send to their clients in emails. If we can add a few bullets on training we can provide to those emails even better. We can also do a social media campaign which targets these sectors and encourage the sector groups to share.

This is all stuff which Chloe has done a great job on for the PPA report so we're well placed to work on it with you for this as well.

Tom, Steph, perhaps if you're not busy over Xmas then researching and drafting the short pieces for each sector would be a good starting point?

If we could get this up by Feb we can start to build a presence ahead of the more concrete updates in March, and use it to advertise a roundtable or similar on the details that come out.

Thanks

Seb

Hi Tom

Sure I'll try and find some time that works for everyone.

We can only really gage what works well by assuming based on how it ranks on Google / performs on social media, there's no way of telling how many page views they get or enquiries as a result unfortunately.

To push us up the page we need to improve the SEO, which involves writing content around specific keywords. I have done some keyword analysis for you, and the content should really include phrases such as 'procurement act summary', 'what is the UK procurement act', 'what does the procurement act UK mean for my business', 'what are the changes to the procurement act', 'a short guide to the procurement act', 'what is the UK procurement bill'.

Once we have more content, it is important there are different links which can boost SEO, which entails sharing on socials and having it linked to different parts of the website so we can add it as a banner on the procurement home page for example. A good example of a project we've been working on recently to boost Google presence is the Corporate PPA Hub – apologies I know this isn't procurement related but shows how much can be involved to boost one thing. We created four different articles, a video and had links to different parts of the website, as well as 3 normal LinkedIn posts and two paid posts on LinkedIn (£1000 investment). Its too soon to tell you how well this has worked as it does take time to see the return on investment, but I just wanted to give you an idea of the type of input we need to boost one area.

We can look into ways of replicating this but just to make you aware we will need effort from you guys on creating content either regularly or for one specific campaign to be able to make any improvements, and I know you don't always have masses of time so just wanted to be clear from the start it isn't something that can be fixed, it takes time through lots of content etc.

Thanks and we can talk through more when we meet, have a good week off 😊

Thanks!

Thanks Chloe for looking into this. If we can meet up to discuss that would be great. If it is possible to see what works well with those I would like to see if there are any quick wins we can replicate and then how to differentiate.

Something I am interested in is trying to push us up the page for searches by suppliers looking to challenge a decision as I assume that is who will be "googling" as authorities will mainly use framework agreements.

Thanks,

Hi Tom

Sorry for my delay!

I've done a google search for 'procurement act 2023' as ideally we would want to be coming up on the top of first page of google for this so anyone searching comes direct to us and not other firms – we do come up on the 1st page, just underneath Stephenson Harwood, TLT, Farrer & Co and then Addleshaw Goodard. The way to maximise this is other content on the website linking back to it, or content on linkedin etc. happy to talk through ideas of boosting our presence though.

I can see mainly other law firms are writing articles:

- Stephenson Harwood have an article series, first one being here – I can't see others yet though
- TLT have a long article which explains it and covers next steps: The road to reform - Procurement Act 2023 - TLT LLP
- Farrer & Co – article again: Procurement Act 2023 granted Royal Assent \(farrer.co.uk\)
- Addleshaw Goddard – article: Procurement Act 2023 receives royal assent | Addleshaw Goddard LLP

- Womble Bond Dickinson: article - <https://www.google.co.uk/url?sa=t&rct=j&q=&esrc=s&source=web&cd=&cad=rja&uact=8&ved=2ahUKewil1u6u-f-CAXPg0HHeeHCfM4ChAWegQIBRAB&url=https%3A%2F%2Fwww.womblebonddickinson.com%2Fuk%2Finsights%2Fnews%2Fprocurement-act-2023&usg=AOvVaw1bNqvGtZrBeUODUYhInWY&opi=89978449>
- Ashfords article: Public Procurement Act 2023: When will it be implemented & what are the key changes? | Ashfords#

Some firms are also hosting / have hosted webinars:

- DLA Piper hosted one quite early on on the 15th Nov : The Procurement Bill becomes an Act: What you need to know about the new procurement regime - Webinar | DLA Piper
- Gowling have also held a webinar: The Procurement Act 2023: A brief update | Gowling WLG
- Mills & Reeve have a new series of webinars looking at each stage of the procurement lifecycle and considering the changes the act will bring: Procurement Act 2023 webinars - Mills & Reeve \(mills-reeve.com\)
- Simmons & Simmons did one on preparing for the act : Preparing for the Procurement Act | Simmons & Simmons \(simmons-simmons.com\)
- Osborne Clarke held one on the implications for suppliers: Procurement Act 2023 | The future of procurement challenges and remedies - Osborne Clarke | Osborne Clarke

Let me know if you'd like anything else and I'm happy to keep an eye out for anything more.

Hi Chloe,

As just mentioned it would be helpful if you were able to have a quick look at what other firms are doing on the procurement act to see what we can do.
